A break on the Isle of Thanet!

PEENS

The Kent coastal towns of Broadstairs, Margate, Ramsgate and Birchington, collectively known as the Isle of Thanet, separated from the mainland by the River Wantsum, make an ideal short break destination.

There are clean, sandy beaches, surfing in Joss Bay, sea safaris with seal watching and lots more. For walkers and cyclists there is the 27-mile Viking Coastal Trail. You can even book a free 'Thanet Greeter' to show you around.

The Enquirer is offering two lucky readers the chance to win a two-night stay, with meals at three of the area's finest restaurants and complimentary tickets to the Cotton-Powell Museum at Quex Park.

Leading food critics have been writing rave reviews about Ramsgate's Eddie Gilbert's restaurant. "Plates the size of small sailing skiffs, fishcakes and bowls of shell-on-prawns, whitebait and mussels with white wine and garlic, fed both the heart and soul... desserts are especially impressive...intriguing-fish cookery with lots of flair," enthused The Observer.

The next day in neighbouring Broadstairs with its quaint squares of fishermen's cottages, a sumptuous lunch awaits at Peens Gastro Bar. Overlooking the sea with al fresco dining. Open from 10am for breakfast, tapas, lunch, bar snacks and dinner, the menu is strong on regional produce and locally caught fish.

You will receive free tickets to one of the UK's most fascinating visitor attractions, the Birchington home of the Powell-Cotton family and their extraordinary collection of treasures at Quex Park. Its natural history dioramas are stunning for their size, quality and imagery. Stop for tea at the renowned Hannah's Dining Suite.

You will spend two nights at Margate's Reading Rooms, the luxury boutique bed and breakfast in a recently restored, Grade II listed Georgian town house overlooking a tree lined Georgian square. Each of its three expansive guest rooms encompasses an entire floor of the house. Less than five minutes walk to the sea and to the historic Old Town cultural quarter.
